answers to these questions.

5. Indigenous Peoples of Saskatchewan

The First Nations and Métis are the Indigenous people of Saskatchewan. The First Nations had a sophisticated knowledge of the land that enabled them to develop rich cultures and live successfully for thousands of years. The Métis are an Indigenous people who emerged from contact between the First Nations and European fur traders. Over the years, the relationship between Indigenous and non-Indigenous people has involved both conflict and cooperation. These questions connect students with places that are associated with the history of Indigenous people in Saskatchewan.
